THE WORLD'S PROCRESS, 501-307 PLUM ST., CINCINNAT:, Q

harrow Escape of the Guerrilla from Death in a Raid.

Current storles regarding the career of Quantrell, the noted guerrilla who harassed the union soldiers, have resulted in bringing to light the fact that his most thrilling, and probably his most narrow, escape from death occurred in Danville. Quantreil made but one excursion through this part of Kentucky, but It was a bold dash and he left a trall of blood behind him, more being found with the Quantrell markthe bullet hole in the forehead just between the cycbrows.

On the day of Quantreil's close call he had arrived in Danville from Hustonviile, in Lineoln county. At Ilustonville he had halted to lay in a fresh stock of horseflesh, and there some of his band had murdered a union officer. Quantrell. A woman who had been at Hustonville preceded the guerrillas to Danville, and when Quantrell reached this elty she ing him by name. Quantrell slmply smiled and said to her: "Why, madam, you were never more mistaken in your life. I am Capt. - of the federal army,"

Quantrell and all his men were attired in federal uniforms, and were posing as federal scouts. They halted in the habit of massing in and out of the town in small squads, no particular atthey had been in the town five or six N. Y. Sun. hours. The woman who had accosted Quantrell upon his arrival believed that he had deceived her, and she told a young federal lieutenant, then In town, what she thought about the men who had arrived that morning. Quantreli and his men were going about town pretty much as they pleased, lounging around the hotels and saloons, feeling perfect security. The lieutenant, from the description furnished by the woman, and from what he had heard of Quantrell, was convinced that the finelooking fellow masquerading in federal clothing was none other than the guerrilla, and determined to kill or capture

The lieutenant procured a carbine and started upon a hunt for his man. He finally caught sight of him walking down the main street of the town. Quantrell was alone, lie walked the length of several squares down one side of the street and started up the other side, the lieutenant with the carbine ln his wake all the time, waiting for an opportunity to corner his man. Ahout the middle of the main square Quantrell entered a saloon, stepped to the bar, and called for a drink.

Just as Quantrell reached over the bar railing to take up a glass, he glanced into the big mirror against the wall and noticed the federal lieutenant entering with the carbine ready to fire. Quantrell very coolly set the glass down, turned about and faced his pursuer. The carbine had by this time been brought to the shoulder of the lieutenant, its muzzle was within three feet of the guerrilla's breast, and the eye which looked down the shining barrel was keen and cool. Quantreli dared not make a false move, and he was powerless to protect himself by force. Ills heavy overcoat was buttoned up to his chln, making the pistols buckled at his walst useless. He gazed at the lieutenant very complacently for a brief period, smiled, and said:

"How now, comrade; what are you going to do with that gun?"

"Shoot you like a dog if you move a muscle," was the reply. "You are Quantrell. You have played it for a long time, but now you're my prisoner. March into that room there.

Quantrell glaneed to an open door at the end of the bar, but didn't obey the command. It was not his intention to do so. His nerve was superb and his self-possession complete.

"Ah, I see," be remarked, quietly. "You take me for Quantrell, but you wrong me, I nesure you. My resemblance to that seoundrel has been most provoking. Permit me to call my orderly sergeant and I will show you that face, and his surprise caused him to I am as true to the unlop as you are. He has all of my papers."

The lieutenent looked surprised as well as somewhat confused, and Quantrell noted his discomfiture. This was a signal for the deception to be redoubled, and so he continued:

"I have also heard stories about the guerrlifa being in this section. To my certain knowledge he is now in Kentucky, and you are simply making a fool of yourself. Put down your gun, satisfaction. Finally it was learned and as long as we are in the same cause let us be friends."

The lieutenant, completely nonpiussed | French stage in New York eity. at Quantreil's cool effrontery and considerably abashed, told him to call his orderly, but kept the carbine ready to he or she, as the case might he, was one fire. as he saw his chief covered with a carolne drew his beavy revolver.

"Stop!" shouted Quantrell. "Not so 'ast. Put up your pistol. Our friend here has heard that I am Quantrell. It's amusing. Show him our papers from the secretary of war, in order that this embarrassment may be removed."

"All right, captain," was the reply, as the man began feeling in an Inside pocket for his papers, still hoiding his revolver, however, in his right hand. He approached the lleutenant as be started to withdraw his hand from his coat, but instead of bringing out the papers he suddenly, with the quickness and ferocity of a wildeat, sprang upon than one federal soldier or sympathizer the young federal, felled him to the floor and held him fast, with the muzzle of the revolver against his head, as he cried:

"These are the papers you are looklug for. We always have them on hand for such as you. Must I give him the old mark, captala?"

"No; let the gentleman up," repiled

The lieutenant arose and was disarmed, and expressed himself as very well satisfied with the papers. Then recognized him and spoke to him, eall- the trlo took a drink together. As Quantrell and the lieutenant continued the conversation the other guerrliia quietly slipped out, passed the word, and in ten minutes more Quantreli's horse was standing in front of the barroom, ready for him to mount. He shook hands with the man who had given him one of the worst senres of his Danville, and as federal soldiers were in life, left the saloon, and rode away. Before the lieutenant could collect his thoughts Quantrell and his band were tention was paid to the guerrilias until far on their road toward Louisville .-

SPY WHO TOOK ATLANTA.

It Has Never Been Known Whether

It Was Man or Woman. In the spring of t864 Atlanta was fuil of Johnston's officers and soldiers. An uneasy feeling prevailed in every cirele, and it was feared that the federals might any day make a forced march or a raid and surprise the city.

Still the people faced the situation courageously. They had passed through so many dangers that they were not easily frightened. The suiten boom of Sherman's big guns could be heard 40 miles away, but Atlanta maintained her usual screnity ontwardly and gave no sign of her secret misgivings.

The theater was then on its last legs, but occusional performances were libcraily patronized. One of the star attractions in a strolling company at that time was a pretty black-eyed young woman, about 20 years old, who carried the town by storm.

The girl was a wouder. She was equally at home in tragedy and comedy. She could slng and dance, and when she took a male part in a play she was a howling success.

A better uli-round artist had never visited Atianta, and that was the gen-

When she told her story It excited sympathy. She was a creole of Louisiina, and her family had been murdered by a raiding party of Butler's troops. She had taken refuge in the confederacy, and, having no relatives or friends, she had decided to use her rare dramatic gifts and earn ber own living. The story made the pretty actiess very popular, and she was patronized to a social way by leading citizens.

Young officers took her out driving, and generals and colonels showed her over the fortifications, which were then nearly finished. The creole's curiosity about such mutters charmed the military men, and it afforded them the greatest possible pleasure to answer her questions and explain every doubtful point,

Several weeks roiled by, and when her company disbunded the actress remained in Atlanta. She established herself at a popular bourding house and lold her friends that she needed a rest before going on the Riehmond stage, She received a great deal of attention and was practically the belle of the army. The lines were closing around the elty, but the creole charmer still lingered. The officers of Johnston's army were at her feet. They sent her costly presents, and every fine day they might have been seen riding with her along the lines of breastwork.

Suddenly the actress disappeared. The military men were nearly ernzy because they could not trace her, but the ladies of the city dld not seem to regret her doparture-in fact they hinted that she was no better than she should be. The month of dune slipped by, and there were no tidlings from the missing star, Then came July, and with it the beginning of the slege.

One the morulaga western corps commander with his stuff rode through the city and took a look at the fortifications At his side was a smuil, dark-faced, idaele-eyed young men, who acted as isis guide and pointed out various things of interest. A prominent Atlanta man met this youngster face to stand almost paralyzed in his tracks.

He was the pretty setres, who had turned the heads of so unmy officers! The stranger's eves met those of the Atlanta man and snapped viciously, Then a mocking smile spread over his piquent face, and his glunce was plainly one of recognition. The theorgian spoke guardedly to several of Sherman's officers about the mysterious young man, but they gave very little that he was a famous personator of male and female characters on the

WATER FOR SHEEP,

Uniess It Is Absolutely Pure the Flock Will He Decimated. Water is directly absorbed into the blood with whatever impurity may be contained in it. It is to some extent strained or filtered of what it may have of solid matter not dissolved in It, but whatever is held in solution, and some of what it may have that is not dissolved to some extent, goes into the blood with it. Thus impure water poisons the very fount of life, says American Sheep Breeder, and carries into an animal what may be the most injurlous to the health of it. There are, however, some injurious matters existing in water which are more especially deserving of notice on account of their very deleterlous effects, such as the eggs or germs of organie matters, either of the most deadly parasitic animals. Of these may be mentloned the germs of epidemie diseases due to the growth in the blood of minute plants derived from these germs, and the deadly parasites such as the liver fluke, the various intestinal worms, and the ova of many tape worms. All these may he taken into sheep in water drank from streams or springs or most frequently from stagnant ponds. One of the most frequent sources of infection is the overflowing of pastures by streams into which a large extent of manured lands may have been drained, or late which the wastes of towns or cities have been discharged. On this account the shep-"Just listen to his bawl-hearing herd cannot excreise too great caution for the protection of his flock, or estimate too highly those most favorable localitles where the streams flow down uncleared mountain slopes, from the primeval forests, or where the sparse population has never deflied the soil with filth and impregnated It with the germs of disease. Nor can he estimate too highly the pure artesian fountain flowing from far down below the sources of impurity, and supplying the flocks with wholesome drink. Dipping is a Good Practice. The practice of dipping sheep is very commendable one. In fact, it is considered absolutely necessary for the preservation of a flock. Many on the western range think that shoop there are free from all diseases, but the fact remains that while sheep may run a year or two and show no signs of being affected in mny wny, there may be a few sheep that are affected and consequently the whole flock must be illpped to reach the few as well us to prevent the growth of the disease until it affects the whole flock. Feed the Pigs Often.

Munay a man would be surprised if he knew how many times a sow nurses her pigs during a day. There are two reasons for this; first, the sow is not able to retain her nillk a long time; second, a pig has a small stomach and cannot store away a great quantity of food at one time. There is a natural beson in this: In order to have plgs do well at an early age feed little but often, four times is better than three a day, especlaily if it is a sloppy or milk food-Farm, Stock and Home

Dry Redding for Hogs. Many of our farmers, in fact the majority of them, do not give suffi-

Hogs love a warm, dry place to sleep, and in their natural state will find it. It is poor policy to neglect providing them likewise when in confinement.-Rural World.

The INTERIOR JOURNAL Extra, distributed here on Wednesday, was gladly received and the glorious democratic news from Lincoln and eisewhere gave additional reasons for rejoicing. The republicans are trying to explain how it happened, but there is only one solution-the people are tired of republican rule and want the party back in Mason Hotel power that seeks to lessen their burdens by low taxation and opposition to trusts and monopolies. We claim a share In the glorious democratic victory all over the country. With a county 200 republican, even giving a majority of 424 ln 1896, the democrats have elected J. W. Hamllton circuit elerk by 145: Letcher Owsley county attorney by 130; David Ross jailer by 11; Miss Eliza Lusk school suindividuals Both perintendent by 208; James McCarley last Fail's and assessor by 58; T. J. Hammond constathis Spring's far- ble by 111. The city elected E. Brown, dem., for police judge, and a democratie board of councilmen. The republicans give Bailey a plurality of 43; Burnside, for county judge, 7: Marsee, for representative, 559, over Kelley, independent; Saunders, for sherlff, 32; Greenleaf, coroner, 20, and Capt. Herndon, for circuit judge, 68. Hindman received 76 votes in the county, Wallace 33 and Parker 8. Duncan, for county elerk, and J. S. Owsley, with no tickets. The magistrates elected are I. M. Myers and J. H. Dunn, democrats, Parsons and Noel, republicans The bond and amendment questions are nothing but constant work and a perfeet organization could have accomplished the result. The boys are just- at 3 to 3 te. ly jubilant. The many friends of Judge Saufley send congratulations.

I want to thank you ail from the bottom of a grateful heart for the noble way you stood by me on election day. No man was ever fought more bitterly or savagely than I was by the whole republican lay-out and my victory is therefore the more gratifying. I feel under deep obligations to the demo crats all over the county and especially do I wish to congratulate my home pre einet, Turnersville, for her splendid vote. From a republican majority of 50, she showed up with a democratic majority of 52. I can never forget the friends who stood so nobiy by me and their confidence will make me more earnest in discharging my every duty fully and weil. SAM M. OWENS.
